WOODROW WOBBLIES

ALL REPUBLICANS NAMED BY WILSON TO INVESTIGATE EIGHT-HOUR LAW

President Wilson has answered the charge that he has appointed too many southern Democrats to see by naming only northern Republicans for the commission to investigate the operation of the Adamson bill, providing an eight-hour day for railroad employees. His appointees are:

George W. Goethals, major general, U. S. A., governor of the Panama Canal Zone and builder of the Panama canal, chairman.

Edgar L. Clark, interstate commerce commissioner, member of the commission which settled the anthracite coal strike and six times president of the Order of Railway Conductors.

George Rublee, acting federal trade commissioner.

While the Adamson law does not become effective until January 1, the president desired the members of the commission to give a close study to the entire situation.—News item in Lexington Herald.

Wobbly Woodrow still wobbles, but it is too late in the day for such appointments as the above to have any effect on the election next month. Woody is trying to pull something at the eleventh hour but the voters on November 7 are going to say, "Depart, for I know ye not."

HOW THIS MAN BEAT THE BANK

A storekeeper had a system of bookkeeping to beat the bank. He hung up two boots, one on either side of an old fireplace—because the fireplace had long been in disuse. In one boot he put all the money he received. In the other all his receipted bills. At the end of the year he thought by this means he could readily make up his accounts. He didn't. A sneak thief took the money out of one boot, and tossing the receipts from the other on the hearth set fire to them and destroyed them. When YOU keep your money in this Bank you have it where you can lay your hand on it at any time, and every check you draw on your Bank Account is a receipt for the payment you make.
